Siemens Software Download Category:Computer-aided design software Category:Siemens software You might have seen a picture of Maggie Barnes in the Muhanna village back in the summer. She was wearing a dress and my husband and I had been invited to a wedding reception with a traditional Moroccan meal. We were to be seated at a table where she would be sitting next to the bridegroom. Suddenly Maggie scurried up to us, dressed in a traditional Arab dress, and stood uncomfortably close to my husband. Maggie was sitting with her mother and sister and she was wearing a full-length dress with an enormous full skirt that reached right down to her ankles. Maggie was standing on the floor next to the table with her mother in front of her. You could see Maggie looking embarrassed and annoyed at being in that position and wanting to move. Her mother stood up and walked her over to where her husband and sister were already sitting. I was so embarrassed. I had never met Maggie before and she and I were never going to meet again. My husband and I had to pretend that it didn't bother us, but I didn't want her to think I was bothered by the way she looked. It was an uncomfortable moment and I was quite sure that my husband and sister didn't think much of it either. Three months later we got a very cute new Somali woman as a mother-in-law and Muhanna was definitely not on my mind. A few months later I was driving to work and my husband saw Maggie sitting on the sidewalk outside the school. It turned out that she was the school nurse and she had been left behind when her husband went back to Somalia. Her husband sent her money to go to the UK on their behalf but because he did not have much money he had to wait until they had made enough to go again. They started the process of getting him a visa again and they thought that they would go to the UK a couple of weeks after school finished in the summer. So when we saw Maggie on the sidewalk we had no idea that she had been left behind. When I got home I shared my story with my husband and he said that he could not believe that we had not gone home that day and that she was on the sidewalk. When we met her and my husband hugged her and said "Welcome to Hastingleigh" she asked us about her husband and where he was.
