"More players move faster, more players move with greater precision and more players make more decisive contact at faster speeds. It's as close to real-life physics as we can achieve in video games," said Alex Jacques, FIFA Lead Producer. "With support for up to 2,000 players per team, FIFA 22 allows for unprecedented, level-sized, hyper-physically accurate gameplay." In FIFA 22, players are more agile than ever, they can work on their ball control with the brand-new double-pivot system, and are closer to the action with the brand-new, high-speed, highly precise gameplay engine. "With 'High Density Player Motion Capture', players could execute goals up to six times faster than in FIFA 21," said Nicolas Doucet, Studio Head, SIE's EA SPORTS. "The 'Evolving Difficulty' feature is also a first for the FIFA franchise, allowing players to create their own difficulty level by more or less modifying game elements in-match, such as, for example, the amount of time players have to call for the ball or the quality of player movement they receive." FIFA 22 further expands the series' player card customization with "Player Card Fields" that allow players to focus on one of 11 unique skill cards or use the largest collection of over 350 player cards to create their dream team. Players can now choose from a collection of player headwear, and can further customize their appearance by selecting their favorite player outfits. FIFA 22 features the most expansive set of international tournaments and leagues in the history of the series, delivering the largest and most intense Club World Cup, and the largest and most diverse set of competitions for the new “Global Nations.” FIFA 22 will be available on PlayStation 4, Xbox One and Windows PC/Steam on September 29, 2019.
