FIG. 1 depicts a side view of a stair-step (SS) effect in accordance with the prior art. The SS effect, illustrated in FIG. 1, presents a staircase effect when a vertical axis is aligned with a horizontal axis, e.g. the X-axis of FIG. 1. FIG. 2 illustrates a top view of the staircase effect shown in FIG. 1. As can be seen, the staircase effect in FIGS. 1 and 2 is positioned within the boundaries of a trapezoidal region. A salient feature of the SS effect is that within the trapezoidal region a vertical line is strictly aligned with a horizontal line. Thus, as shown in FIG. 2, an object of the present invention is to create a staircase effect in a rectangular display area that is not strictly aligned with a horizontal or vertical axis. The purpose of this program is to train intensively qualified scientists as collaborative research personnel in the dental and craniofacial research enterprise of NICHHD. The program has seen a major expansion in the last three years. Each year, we will train at least one dentist and one dentist-scientist in each of the four designated research areas. In addition, we will train at least one of the following: clinician-scientists, clinical scientists, postdoctoral fellows, and graduate students. Trainees will come from both academia and industry and will spend at least two years in the program. This goal is in keeping with the mission of NICHD to improve the health and development of children through programs of research, research training, and research dissemination. Because we believe that such training is a bridge between basic research and clinical interventions, we will encourage trainees in all aspects of the research enterprise to develop the necessary skills in oral and dental health d0c515b9f4
